

Research

"Does Camping Count?"

The 16th of October 2009 marked the launch of "Does Camping Count?", a research project conducted by the Key Centre for Women's Health in Society at the University of Melbourne, commissioned by The Salvation Army in partnership with the Council to Homeless Persons, Melbourne City Mission, and Family Access Network. The ground breaking report focusses on children's experiences of homelessness. The report's recommendations were written by an experienced reference group, including FAN's CEO, Sue Carlile.

To download a copy of the report, please click here.